Be worth the sacrifice

By Lt. Col. Eric Westby

61st Airlift Squadron commander

Memorial Day is a beloved holiday in American culture; a welcome three day weekend where friends and families gather together for grilling, relaxing and having a good time.

But what does it really mean? What lies behind all the hot dogs, baseball games, Indy 500s and picnics?

What is now known as Memorial Day originated as Decoration Day in 1868, when an organization of Union veterans established it as a day to decorate the graves of Civil War dead with flowers. Similar traditions observed near the same time appeared all over the nation, and the holidays gradually merged into one Decoration Day celebrated at the end of May. Federal law declared the official name of the holiday as Memorial Day in 1967, and in 1968 Congress moved it to the last Monday in May.

Those of us on active duty and veterans no longer in uniform are often thanked for our service, and even more so on patriotic holidays such as Memorial Day, Independence Day and Veterans Day. It makes me glad to know the effort and sacrifice of so many of my forebears and colleagues is appreciated by complete strangers all over this great country.

From my perspective, I'm humbled and grateful for the kind words; but truth be told, Memorial Day is actually dedicated to the memory of American servicemen and women who paid the ultimate price for this nation. That is where our focus should be on this day; on the over 1.2 million Americans who have died in this nation's wars since 1775.

However the name originated, the purpose of the day remains the same: to honor the heroes who gave everything for this nation. Do I resent the barbeques and baseball games? Of course not; I'll be grilling away in my backyard surrounded by my family. But we will also take time to pause and reflect on all that has been sacrificed by so many so that my children and their children can live free. They can grow up to be anything they want. They can dream big and do big things. They can make this nation and this world a better place because of the opportunities and freedoms provided and guaranteed by all those heroes' deaths.

And that's my challenge for anyone reading this. Do something to honor all those Americans who died for this country, for our rights and for our children's freedom – be worth the sacrifice.

Airmen from my squadron recently departed on yet another combat deployment. They know the risks yet still leave their families to do their jobs and accomplish their mission in a very dangerous place. The knowledge that they all voluntarily took that oath to defend the Constitution of the United States – and to perhaps give their lives in its defense – truly humbles me and puts me in awe of these tremendous Americans I get to work with every day. They're worth it.

But you don't have to be in the military to be worthy of the sacrifices made. Make this country a better place. Volunteer. Teach. Inspire. Exercise your rights paid for with American lives; vote in the upcoming election. Be a youth sports coach. Take an active role in improving your community. Be the best parent raising the best kids who will be the next generation of leaders in the nation and the world.

Be worth it.

HISTORY FACT

On June 4, 1941, the War Department commissioned the construction of a $33 million fuse and detonator plant near Jacksonville. The Arkansas Ordnance Plant (AOP), part of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's lend-lease program, was the first national defense industry approved for the state. The War Department chose the location due to Arkansas' unlimited supplies of natural gas and coal, its strategic location away from the coast, and the large available labor force. In November 1942, at the peak of production the plant employed 14,092 workers, 75 percent of which were Women Ordnance Workers (WOW). From 1942 until production ended in 1945, employees produced 1,062,336,263 detonators and relays, 106,697,860 primers, 328,948,476 percussion elements, 175,856,066 fuses, and 5,810,315 boosters, which accounted for 85 percent of all the detonators and fuses used by the Allies during World War II. Little Rock AFB currently occupies a portion of the land previously used by the AOP, while the Jacksonville Museum of Military History operates from the ordnance plant's original administrative building.

18th AF commander visits Little Rock

U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Sarah Santoro, 41st Airlift Squadron commander, welcomes U.S. Air Force Lt. Gen. Sam Cox, 18th Air Force commander, on May 23 in Bldg. 286 on Little Rock Air Force Base. Cox toured the squadron to see how the 41st AS and the 19th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron help provide rapid, global mobility and sustainment for U.S. Armed Forces.

By Staff Sgt. Jeremy McGuffin
19th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

U.S. Air Force Lt. Gen. Sam Cox, 18th Air Force commander, visited Little Rock Air Force Base, Home of Combat Airlift, May 23-24 for the first time since taking command of Air Mobility Command's only numbered air force in October.

The general visited the Walters Community Support Center and met with the supporting agencies that help Airmen and their families. He received an in-depth look at the programs aimed at keeping Team Little Rock resilient even as operations tempo remains high.

Cox received a detailed 19th Airlift Wing mission brief and visited key supporting elements which combine to ensure combat airlift succeeds. His tour included the 41st and 61st Airlift Squadrons where he had the opportunity to fly with the 61st AS in a C-130J.

During his visit with the 41st and 61st AS, Cox commented that the combat airlift capability begins with the formal training unit here, then builds all the way to the operational execution through the 19th AW and the employment of those assets.

Combat Airlift, while comprised of two flying squadrons, is effective through its supporting agencies who work together to support the operational units to ensure mission success.

At the All Call, Cox spoke to members of Team Little Rock on how the base exemplifies the total force concept through its partnership with both Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve components.

"I see Mobility Forces moving toward an increased and better reliance on the Total Force," Cox said. "Our Active, guard, and Reserve partnership is going to be critical moving forward.”

Cox also offered insight as to what the future of the Air Force looks like. He emphasized that continuing to invest in the Air Force’s capabilities and readiness are essential to ensuring that the Air Force maintains global range, speed and strategic agility.

“While we won’t see growth at all in terms of weapons systems, what we’ll be able to do is fill in where some of those personnel gaps,” the general said. “We made some of the force shaping decisions based on a force size that’s different than we have today in terms of force structure. So now that we are there in structure, it’s about refilling the holes in manpower.”

Although the Air Force now boasts a smaller footprint, the newer technologies and platforms coming online mean infrastructure requirements are decreasing. The Air Force is continuing to “Right the Force” in terms of size, capacity, readiness as well as present and future capabilities. Cox emphasized the importance of thinking outside the box and finding creative solutions to not only today’s problems but those of the future.

“We have that innovative spirit,” said Cox. “It’s that ‘over not through’ mentality that creates a different way of attacking problems.”

As Cox wrapped up his tour of Little Rock AFB he commented not only on the hard work and excellence of the Airmen but the total force concept being implemented and the teamwork demonstrated daily. He had one final message for Team Little Rock

“Continue to be the best at your job,” Cox said. “Strive to be the best and have a positive attitude because you are important people performing an important mission.”

U.S. Air Force Lt. Gen. Sam Cox, 18th Air Force commander, and U.S. Air Force Chief Master Sgt. Todd Petzel, 18th Air Force command chief, are briefed on runway construction status May 24 at Little Rock Air Force Base. The $117 million runway replacement construction project will replace the current runway that was built in the late 1950s. Though there will be temporary airfield closures to perform work close to the runway, there will be no detrimental impact to airfield operations and flying training.

MEMORIAL DAY, MAY 30

Watch for children playing during summer break

Today is the last day of school for base schools, and with students out for summer break drivers should be aware of increased pedestrian traffic, especially around base housing and recreation areas.

Everyone should also be aware of the base's curfew hours and youth supervision guidelines. The youth curfew applies to everyone under the age of 18, unless legally emancipated.

■ The curfew requires those under 18 be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian during curfew hours.

■ Curfew hours are Monday–Thursday 10 p.m.–5 a.m., and Friday and Saturday midnight–5 a.m. and Sunday 11 p.m.–5 a.m.

■ If a youth is returning home from school, city or church-sponsored activities, a grace period up to one hour from the time of the end of the activity is granted.

■ Youth with jobs need to have in their possession a signed letter from their employer and parent or guardian identifying the place of employment, parent/guardian names, current on-base address, telephone number and normal hours of employment.

YOUTH SUPERVISION GUIDELINES

■ Children under age 6 are required to have adult supervision and may never be left home alone at any time; however they may walk alone to and from school.

■ Children ages 7-to-9 years also cannot be left home alone. They may be left in a vehicle (except in hot weather) with the car keys removed and handbrake applied for no longer than 15 minutes, and the adult supervising must be within visual distance of the vehicle.

CHILDREN AGES 10 AND 11:

■ May be left at home without supervision for up to two (2) hours, as long as they can immediately telephone an adult person to help them in case of need or emergency;

■ May not be left overnight without adult supervision;

■ 11 year olds may babysit siblings for no more than two hours after receiving Red Cross babysitting training or equivalent;

■ May be left alone outdoors unattended during non-curfew hours; and

■ May be left in a vehicle (except in hot weather) with

CHILDREN AGES 12 TO 14:

■ During non-curfew hours may be left at home without adult supervision;

■ May not be left alone overnight without adult supervision;

■ May play outside during non-curfew hours;

■ May be left alone in a car (except in hot weather);

■ May baby sit their siblings; and

■ If the minor is in the seventh grade or 12 years old, they may baby sit other families' children, providing they have completed Red Cross babysitting training or equivalent.

CHILDREN 15 TO HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION:

■ May be left without adult supervision at home before or after curfew hours;

■ May be left alone overnight without adult supervision, if their sponsor remains readily accessible in the local area;

■ Children 16 years old to high school graduates may be left alone for up to five days and nights while their sponsor is away on temporary duty assignment or on leave, providing that another adult has agreed to make periodic checks on the juvenile;

■ May play outside unattended during non-curfew hours;

■ May be left alone in a car (except in hot weather); and

■ May baby sit their siblings and children from other families, providing they have completed Red Cross babysitting training or equivalent.

NEIGHBORHOOD WATCH

The 19th Security Forces Squadron Police Services and Investigations offices conduct monthly Neighborhood Watch meetings the last Wednesday of every month at 5:30 p.m. at the base housing welcome center. The program was implemented to establish an open communication forum for housing residents to express any security concerns they have, as well as provide feedback to security forces with the intent of establishing a safer environment.

The safety and security of our base and resident's private property requires vigilance of the entire Team Little Rock community. Report suspicious activity around your home and surrounding areas to the 19th Defense Operations Center at 987-3221.

Cool planning fights extreme heat

It is best to be proactive and have a plan for extreme heat before summer arrives.

Extreme heat kills by pushing the human body beyond its limits. In extreme heat and high humidity, evaporation is slowed and the body must work extra hard to maintain a normal temperature.

Most heat disorders occur because the victim has been overexposed to heat or has over-exercised for his or her age and physical condition. Older adults, young children, and those who are sick or overweight are more likely to succumb to extreme heat.

KNOW THE TERMS

Familiarize yourself with these terms to help identify an extreme heat hazard:

■ Heat Cramps — Muscular pains and spasms due to heavy exertion. Although heat cramps are the least severe, they are often the first signal that the body is having trouble with the heat.

■ Heat Exhaustion — Typically occurs when people exercise heavily or work in a hot, humid place where body fluids are lost through heavy sweating. Blood flow to the skin increases, causing blood flow to decrease to the vital organs. This results in a form of mild shock. If not treated, the victim's condition will worsen. Body temperature will keep rising and the victim may suffer heat stroke.

■ Heat Stroke — A life-threatening condition. The victim's temperature control system, which produces sweating to cool the body, stops working. The body temperature can rise so high that brain damage and death may result if the body is not cooled quickly.

BEFORE EXTREME HEAT:

To prepare for extreme heat, you should:

- Build an emergency kit and make a family communications plan;
- Install window air conditioners snugly; insulate if necessary;
- Check air-conditioning ducts for proper insulation;
- Install temporary window reflectors (for use between windows and drapes), such as aluminum foil-covered cardboard, to reflect heat back outside;
- Keep storm windows up all year; and
- Get trained in first aid to learn how to treat heat-related emergencies.

DURING EXTREME HEAT:

- Never leave children or pets alone in closed vehicles;
- Stay indoors as much as possible and limit exposure to the sun;

- Eat well-balanced, light, and regular meals. Avoid using salt tablets unless directed to do so by a physician;
- Drink plenty of water; even if you do not feel thirsty. Avoid drinks with caffeine;
- Limit intake of alcoholic beverages; and
- Dress in loose-fitting, lightweight, and light-colored clothes that cover as much skin as possible. Avoid dark colors because they absorb the sun's rays.

For more information about combatting the effects of extreme heat and other emergency events, visit www.beready.af.mil.
